

DOCTOR OF PHILOSOPHY (PH.D.) IN EDUCATIONAL INNOVATION AND TECHNOLOGY (EIT)

Why Choose This Program?

The Doctor of Philosophy in Educational Innovation and Technology (Ph.D. in EIT) program was designed to:

- Become Expertise in Emerging Technologies
- Enhance Research Skills and Expertise
- Strengthen Your Academic and Professional Career
- Influence Educational Policy and Practice
- Build Global Perspectives and Network

Future Career Prospects

Graduates of the Educational Innovation and Technology Program will be able to work in educational leadership positions, such as:

- University Professor or Lecturer
- Educational Researcher
- Educational Technology Specialist
- Curriculum and Instruction Consultant
- Learning Experience Designer
- Policy Analyst
- Research Director
- Educational Innovation Consultant
- Academic Administrator
- International Education Specialist

Course Structure

Ph.D. degree in Educational Innovation and Technology equip students with 57 credits within at least 3 academic years toward 6 years for full time students and 8 years for weekend students.

In this program, students are required to take the coursework requirements as follow:

Course Title	Credit	Priority
Theory and Practice in Curriculum Design	3	Required
Foundations of Innovative Instructional Design	3	Required
Fundamental Concepts of Innovation in Education	3	Required
Advanced Research Methods	3	Required
Experimental Research Design in Education	3	Required
Educational Technology and Artificial Intelligence	3	Required
Theory and Practice in Psychological Testing	3	Required
Research Proposal and Dissertation Writing	3	Required
Research	Credit	Priority
Personal Seminar on Specialized Topic	3	Required
Dissertation Proposal Defense	3	Required
Conference Paper Presentation	3	Required
Journal Paper Publication	6	Required
Ph.D. Dissertation	18	Required